Faculty Development Workshop for Course & Clerkship Directors, Chief Residents, & Interested Faculty

Student Mistreatment --

What Do Our Faculty Need to Know and

What Do Surveys of Our Students Show?

Medical schools face the challenge of creating supportive environments for medical education, particularly settings free of sexual harassment, racial discrimination and forms of general mistreatment and public belittlement. Join us for this workshop to learn more about the overall environment across all four years of our medical school as perceived by our students.

Objectives:

- Learn about the Association of American Medical Colleges' definitions of student mistreatment
- Review University and School of Medicine policy about students' rights and responsibilities and freedom from mistreatment
- Describe the results of the questionnaire detailing the incidence and type of medical student mistreatment
- Review and analyze student vignettes of perceived mistreatment as reported after the questionnaire
